DnD Couture was honored with an award for the East Africa Creative Designs of the Year
during the East Africa International Fashion Week.

Provided the theme was what makes Africa different (Black is Gold), for me what makes Africa different is its creativity. That's why my collection was about exploring Africa's creativity through the colors that mean most to the continent: that is black, green, red and yellow/gold (Pan-African Colours).

Lights! Camera! Action! That was the scene last weekend at the Best Western Plus Meridian Hotel courtesy of the East Africa Fashion Week that seamlessly fused a high-octane runway show with a celebratory awards-ceremony, all expertly hosted by Elesha Ais. This celebration was more than a mere display of creativity; it served as a strong declaration of East Africa's burgeoning influence on the international fashion landscape.

DnD-COUTURE By Clotia Paul
This stunning work by Clotia Paul's artistic collection, which gives a striking twist to classic African embroidery, is a fusion of tradition with ingenuity and style.

Trends by Trendy Adell
This magnetic power suit by Trendy Adell offers a different take on tailoring, a departure from the usual structured silhouette. The asymmetrical waistline, subtle asymmetry and subtle patterned panels make for a look that is both bold and edgy.

Nozmi by Nozmi Kiche
Nozmi Kiche's designs are inspired by traditional African designs and motifs. Her collections are usually very colorful, with a focus on intricate embroidery, creating the look of a dramatic, cascading necklace of large monofilament beads. This collection highlights the line involves intricate beaded fringe, off-white garments and earthy tones.

Following the recognition as East Africa's Creative Designs of the Year, DnD Couture was featured in the Nairobi, where our designs were praised for their exceptional creativity and innovation.

Its a dramatic yet refined a statement piece that embodies art in motion.

Commanding the runway, this look fused wing-like sculptural sleeves with a vivid textured green drape across the bodice, flowing into a glossy voluminous skirt a breathtaking play of structure against fluidity.

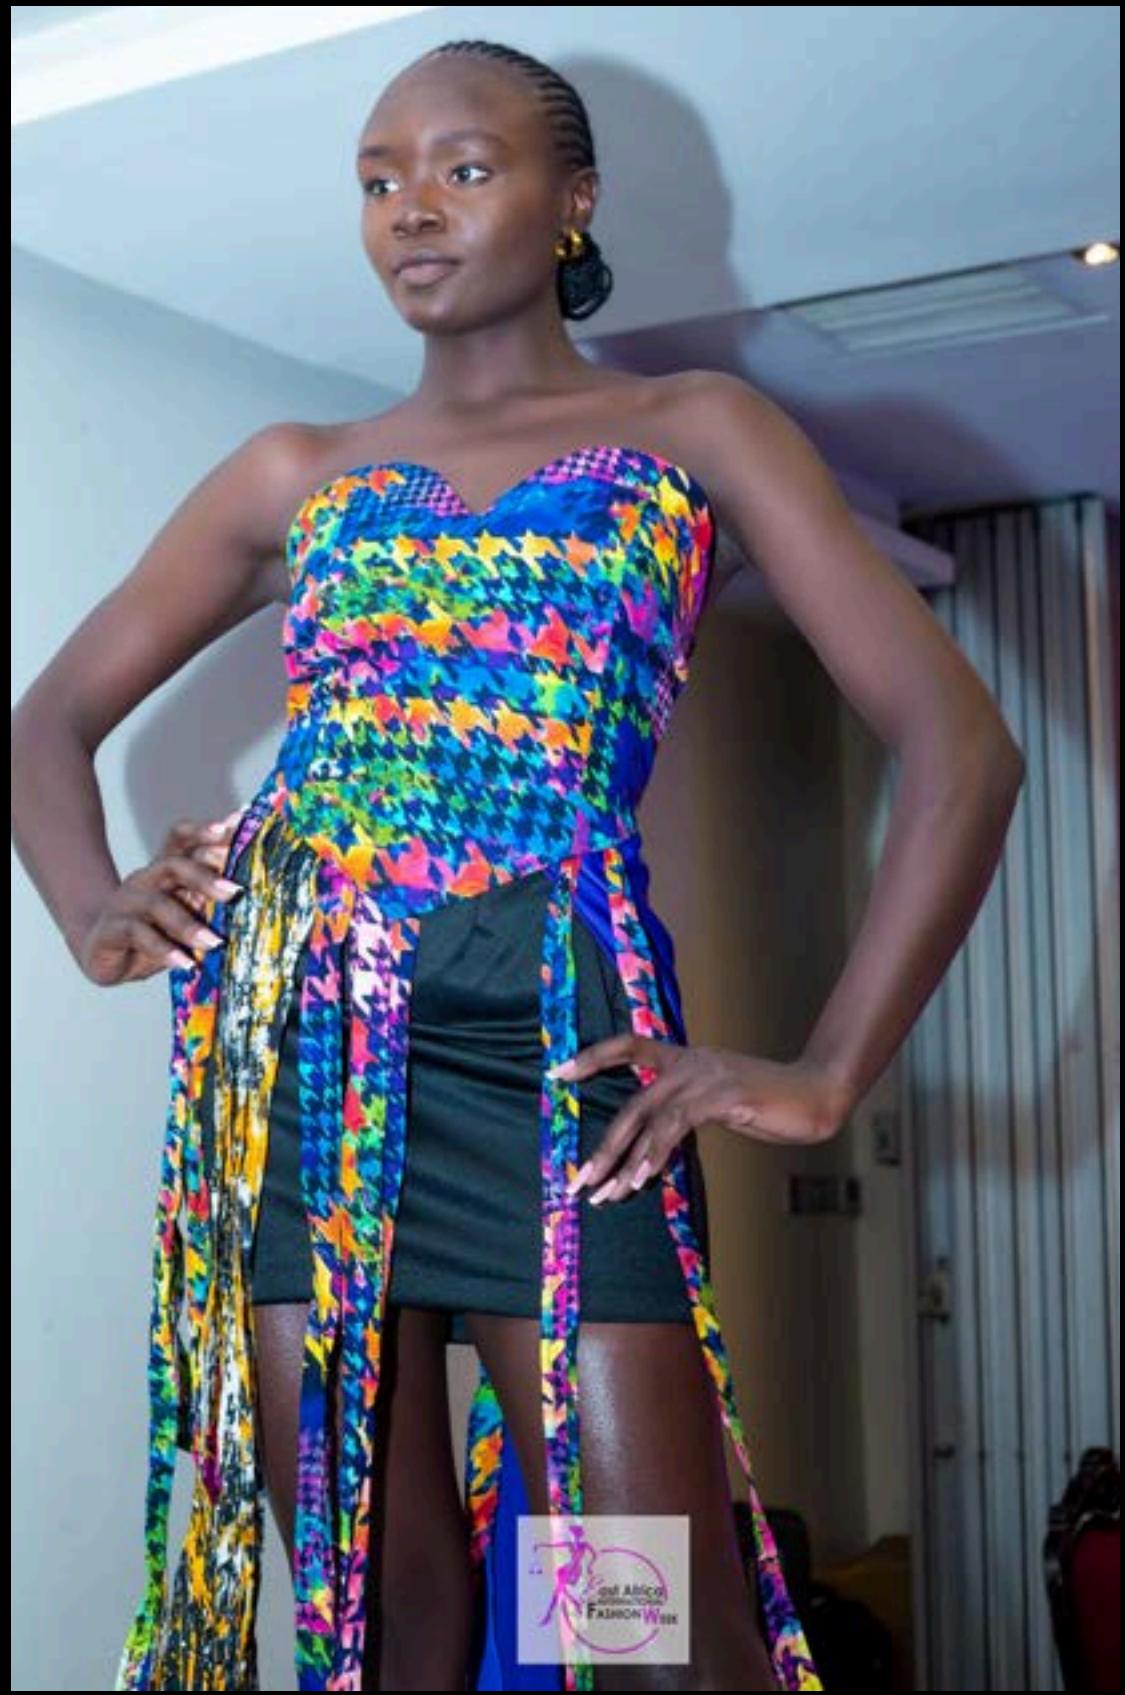

The Blazer vest is crafted from patchwork of leftover diverse ankara fabrics, bringing together vibrant pieces into one striking design.

A statement gown in emerald green with voluminous flow and golden accents, exuding luxury and regal elegance on the runway.
